JOY in Our Town

Joy in Our Town interviewed some very interesting guests from around Oklahoma City.

KTBO's Joy in Our Town Dolly Velasquez interviewed guests for Our public affairs format. KTBO is transitioning into a faith-based format for Joy in Our Town, featuring guests who focus on addressing issues in the community using Christ-centered models.

Guests this month included: Susan Agel (right) CEO and principal of Positive Tomorrows, who talked about children who lack food, home, and security. It is sad to that that there are kids who don't know where they may be sleeping on any given night, or if they will have anything to eat. These children need extra help and attention to learn and lead healthy lives. Helping those in need as Jesus asked us to do is what Positive Tomorrows is all about.

Mark Woodward with Oklahoma City Bureau of Narcotics spoke about the continuing dangers that exist in the community from marijuana use, and also from the dramatic rise in the use of heroin.

SENDING THE HOPE AND GRACE OF JESUS TO THE WORLD!

Linda Morgan and Leigh Roberts with Parents Helping Parents visited with Joy host Dolly Velasquez about the drug and alcohol addictions their sons faced. The Parents Helping Parents group is a great help with support for each other. They both said going through this with their sons has made them stronger persons and helped them to grow in their Christian faith.

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

We purchased the above supplies that were needed by Positive Tomorrows for the children and the school. They are helping so many neglected children to receive an education.
