

WCLJ Indianapolis Report for May 2016

This month at WCLJ we began on an interesting note, participating in a Bible prophecy conference held here in Indianapolis. Pictured here is L.A. Marzulli, who has been on numerous programs on TBN. We recorded a couple of segments about some recent discoveries that have been made on the subject.

Also part of the conference were a Native American couple, Chief Joseph and Laralyn River Wind (left). I was amazed to hear some of the connections to Bible prophecy that the Native American people have. Also, surprising to me was their connection to Jewish culture.

Another participant who came and spoke for us was Gary Kah (right), a national and international speaker and author of several books on the subject of globalism. Gary worked for the United States government many years before starting his own ministry, Hope for the World.

His Hand Extended

WCLJ's His Hand Extended food pantry was able to participate in the annual United States Post Office food drive. I was able to be at the post office as the trucks came in from their daily routes and I unloaded the food they collected with their help. We received over one thousand pounds of food thanks to them. This is a portion of the food and helped to serve the 409 people we had visit us.

Children's Video on Smile of a Child

It was nice to see one of the children's videos that we shot here recently used on TBN's Smile of a Child kid's network. This time we snapped a picture off the screen of the TV in our Green Room while guests were there waiting. I suppose it is always in season to tell the story of Baby Jesus.

Praise the Lord

We recorded some music this month with some artists that were traveling through. Damion Murrill & Siloam were a real blessing as well as Willie Small (left).

We also featured an amazing love story about two young people (below, right) who waited on God to bring them their mates and stayed faithful as they trusted God to bring that perfect person for them.

Also, since heroin is continuing to prove to be a national problem and is truly an epidemic in Indiana, we welcomed Bobby Hayden Jr. (left) of Cardboard Box Ministries to Joy in Our Town to discuss the problem. Speaking from first-hand knowledge, Bobby shared with parents about the urgency of watching what their kids are doing, and recognize the signs of drug and especially heroin use.
