Hope Loftis and Ray Marin

Hope Loftis and Pastor Erik Hines

Hope Loftis and Jason McCormick

Hope Loftis hosted several programs covering substance addiction problems, Christian education, and faith. Pastor Erik Hines (Founder, President, and Executive Director of Spring to Life) talked about how drug addiction can be a result of basic human needs being unmet. These needs can be love, affection, appreciation, and acceptance. The Church needs to remove the stigma of addiction and show the open arms of Christ to the addicted person. No matter how many times a person fails, God always forgives. Pastor Erik also talked about his organization and how it helps people with methamphetamine abuse problems. Meth abuse has become a major issue in Tennessee, with one reason being that it is a readily available inexpensive drug. At Spring to Life, all counselors have had addiction problems in their past, but have overcome their addiction through Christ. Jason McCormick (Area Director, Northern Middle Tennessee Fellowship of Christian Athletes) talked about the spiritual needs of the student athlete in today's schools. Their main goal is to spread the message of Jesus Christ to the student athlete and as the student grows in their faith, they spread that to others. Ray Marin (Accelerated Christian Education) spoke about the benefits of a Christian homeschool education, as well as Christian education being a proper education for children of all cultures. Ray stated that it is the family's responsibility to teach the children, with parents being ultimately responsible for the education of their children. With today's society, some parents prefer homeschool to public school, as it is a more affordable option than private Christian schools.
